

Early Journal Content on JSTOR, Free to Anyone in the World

This article is one of nearly 500,000 scholarly works digitized and made freely available to everyone in the world by JSTOR.

Known as the Early Journal Content, this set of works include research articles, news, letters, and other writings published in more than 200 of the oldest leading academic journals. The works date from the mid-seventeenth to the early twentieth centuries.

We encourage people to read and share the Early Journal Content openly and to tell others that this resource exists. People may post this content online or redistribute in any way for non-commercial purposes.

Read more about Early Journal Content at http://about.jstor.org/participate-jstor/individuals/early-journal-content.

JSTOR is a digital library of academic journals, books, and primary source objects. JSTOR helps people discover, use, and build upon a wide range of content through a powerful research and teaching platform, and preserves this content for future generations. JSTOR is part of ITHAKA, a not-for-profit organization that also includes Ithaka S+R and Portico. For more information about JSTOR, please contact support@jstor.org.

IN MEMORIAM.

LEWIS G. BELL.

MR. LEWIS G. BELL, of Lynchburg, Virginia, the head of the house of J. P. Bell Company, publishers of the VIRGINIA LAW REGISTER, died suddenly of heart disease at the Bromine Arsenic Springs in Ashe county, North Carolina, on August 5, 1903, in the forty-first year of his age.

To all who knew Mr. Bell, the news of his death will bring a sense of personal loss out of the usual order. A man of fine natural ability, cultivated by years of assiduous attention to a growing business, he stood, as men thought, upon the threshold of an unusually successful career. Quiet in his demeanor, he was endowed with the thoroughness and accuracy which make a man a master in his calling. His methods were simple, direct and straightforward, and as a consequence he was honored in his community, which held his word equivalent to his sealed assurance. In the VIRGINIA LAW REGISTER he took a deep personal pride, and in the recent enlargement of its scope was prompt to volunteer his cordial co-operation with the projected plans. Labor with such a man was delightful.

The impress of his strong personality upon all who knew him well will not easily be effaced. The world is better for the lives of such men—men who construe liberally and yet fill out to the full the measure of the tasks allotted them—who are not always looking at the material as the essence of life's efforts, but who now and then turn aside to other paths which are as fruitful of substantial good and bring no sorrow with them.